The City of

TROY

Office of the Mayor

Mark P. Pattison Mayor

October 1, 2002

Phone (518) 270-4401 Fax (518) 270-4609

The purpose of my 2003 Budget Message is to translate the mass of numbers into a plan for the upcoming year. The plan needs to be understandable and clearly describe the direction in which I, as the Mayor, want the city to go. The plan embodies the hopes and dreams of this administration, our workforce and our citizens.

These hopes and dreams are gathered from the countless meetings, calls, and discussions, both positive and negative, that staff and I have with our residents, property owners, neighborhood groups, businesses and other community and governmental partners.

These hopes and dreams are then shaped into a plan based on the reality of our fiscal situation. That plan cannot be based on unrealistic expectations and unachievable initiatives.

Sometimes, in fact often, these two foundations of vision and reality compete with each other. That is true today more than any other time in my tenure as Mayor.

This is the most difficult budget that I have ever presented! We stand at a critical juncture. Our future has never been more promising or more threatened!

Seven years ago we faced a financial crisis that was in large part a result of our own making. We had not faced our challenges head on and instead let our government make decisions that felt good in the short term but hurt us deeply in the long term.

Seven years ago we changed that! We faced our problems. We made difficult decisions and we solved our problems by standing on our own two feet. We had help. We were fortunate that at the time we had a growing national and state economy. Senator Bruno's election as New York State Senate Majority Leader clearly brought new resources to the table.

Yet our success was secured by our will and determination to make the best use of our resources so that our future would be bright for all of our citizens.

It has worked! Today, we are investing in initiatives that make us competitive in the 21st Century economy. Home sales continue to be strong. Our neighborhoods have active citizen groups working with us to keep the quality of life high. Crime is down in Troy, more than in any other city in our region. Our municipal service departments - Public Safety, Sanitation, Street Cleaning, Water and Sewer - while strained to the limit, are providing their services to our taxpayers day in and day out. We are paving our streets, buying necessary equipment for service delivery, maintaining critical physical plants such as our water treatment system and investing in technology to provide services efficiently without additional costs to the system.

We are seeing new interest in investing in our community. Sematech North and Rensselaer's plans for high technology investment, the Market Block and Proctor's Theater conversions to high-end adaptive reuse and neighborhood improvement programs promoting livability are part of the mix that attracts new homeowners, residents and businesses to Troy. The city is at a tipping point that will lead us into a renewed future.

We have secured literally hundreds of millions of dollars in public and private investment in our community.

Yet our challenges to maintaining the course have never been higher!

Today the national and state economies have soured. September 11th has exacerbated an already weakening economy. Seven years of flat revenues from the federal and state governments, no growth in sales tax revenues and skyrocketing increases in health care and retirement costs pose serious barriers to maintaining a structurally balanced budget that includes all of the critical ingredients of sustaining on going services, investing in capital improvements and launching new initiatives.

Our budget must reflect the new realities. We must make the right choices that will sustain our progress through these difficult times and position us for the long term potential we now see right in front of us! The 2003 budget reflects the economic realities of the post-September 11 world and includes a 13.5% tax increase in order to maintain the current level of services.

This budget also recognizes the changing reality by appropriating one half of our anticipated special revenue sharing (distressed cities aid) into our operating budget. This is a change from past years, but not a change in approach. By recognizing only one half of the aid we have received in previous years, we maintain a conservative and prudent approach to budgeting considering the potential risks in the upcoming state budget.

This will leave us the opportunity, if our special revenue aid does come in at previous levels, to have a capital program if the Council so desires.

Overall this budget, in the face of tremendous challenges, maintains critical city services, minimizes the impact of a tax increase and protects the city against future shortfalls.

Budget Overview

Cutting the cost of government, making government more efficient is always the first order of business! Each year since I have been Mayor we have sought every avenue to control costs. This year my budget call letter requested department heads to submit budget requests that reflected a 2% reduction in their baseline budgets. Later, facing increased estimated expenditure increases, we cut the baseline budget an additional $560,000! That is a total of over $750,000 in cuts to our baseline budget. Last year we cut over a million dollars.

These savings have been achieved through effective management, innovative programs and tough bargaining at the negotiating table. We have also taken painful steps such as not filling positions, downgrading the pay scales of new replacement positions, and simply spending less on things that are useful, but not affordable.

Troy's continued success depends on making the right choices. We have made the right choices during the past seven years and have the progress to show for it. Troy is now facing a bigger challenge and must adjust to the new realities of a shrinking state and national economy. The 2003 Budget is bare bones. Efficiencies depend on investment in people, equipment and technology.

The overall budget in 2003 will increase approximately 6.8%. Most of the increased spending of $3 million is directly attributable to the fixed costs of providing needed government services. It should come as no surprise that these items are spiraling upward. These are not new items, but were noted in the 2002 Budget Message as annual costs expected to exceed the rate of inflation for the next several years. All major municipalities in the Capital District have released preliminary budget projections with expenditure gaps and revenue losses.

| • | Retirement | $786,000 |
|---|-------------------------|-----------|
| • | Healthcare | 735,000 |
| • | Wages | 637,000 |
| • | Utilities | 252,000 |
| • | Contractual Agreements | 210,000 |
| • | Refuse Removal Contract | 200,000 |
| • | Workers Comp | 148,000 |

In spite of those difficulties, I am submitting a document that:

- Maintains quality city services;
- Limits any tax increase to an affordable level for taxpayers;
- · Produces a structurally balanced budget.

Revenue and Expenditure Outlook

As required by law, my administration has produced a structurally balanced budget every year that I have been Mayor. The 2003 Budget is also balanced. Troy continues to have a flat revenue stream. We are not projecting any new sources of revenue to support our operating budget increases for the foreseeable future. In fact, this budget recognizes a drop in our traditional revenue sources of over $400,000. The City's Operating Budget of $46 million is supported primarily by three sources - Real Property Taxes, Sales Tax and State Aid. No significant increase in any of these is anticipated. Sales tax revenue is tied directly to the economy that has experienced a downturn and State Aid to the decisions of the Governor and State Legislature. Budgetmaking choices are limited: 1) Increase revenues, 2) cut expenditures or 3) both. We have opted for the third to limit the impact of a tax increase and to maintain vital city services.

The 2003 Budget is approximately equal to what the city spent in 1995, some eight years prior.

These are extraordinary times! Difficult times require that we remain flexible in our approach. In the past I have rejected the call to use our Special Revenue Sharing Aid (Distressed Cities aid) for on going expenses. Last year, I proposed a small, limited use of this aid for a time limited expenditure to fund negotiated retirement options for our rank and file Police and Fire personnel.

This year, as a result of no increases in on going aid for the last seven years, I am forced to recognize one half of this aid as an ongoing revenue source.

Caution and Conservative Budgeting Remains a Priority Principal

Given the fragility of our budget and the potential difficulties faced by our state government, I am continuing to reserve $2.1 million of our Special Revenue Sharing for either capital investment or contingency. It is simply not prudent to overestimate this aid and put our community at an undue risk in the future.

Debt service continues to require a disproportionate share of the City's annual operating expense. The City's current level of debt service will remain in place until 2016. Our annual debt service payments total 13% or $5.8 million, above the accepted standard for the maximum debt service of no more than 10% of the annual operating budget. It is unfortunate that the financial excesses of previous administrations continue to haunt the City well into the future.

This budget maintains critical city services.

Public Safety Remains A Priority

Crime is down in Troy, more than in any other Capital Region city! Much of our success is due to our emphasis on Community or Problem Oriented Policing that focuses on the Quality of Life issues in our neighborhoods. My credo since becoming Mayor has been to provide for a Cleaner/Safer City. It is a labor-intensive proposition to provide the city services that result in a cleaner and safer city. The 2003 Budget maintains the City's commitment to community policing.

We have kept police strength at a stable level of 114 positions. We also are maintaining our innovative fire and emergency service staffing that earns the best fire response time in the state while simultaneously maintaining all fire station and equipment in service. Additionally, the City has kept advanced life support trained paramedics on almost all our apparatus and continues to maintain our minimum manning staffing at safe levels. Three new fire pumpers, funded from the 2000 and 2001 Capital Budgets, have been ordered and will arrive in early 2003.

Keeping the city safer also means keeping the city cleaner. This budget maintains current programs for garbage pick up, recycling, trash and brush pick up. While we are stretched to our limit, we will still be able to make small improvements such as our one-day pick up schedule and our additional trash crew that was recently announced. Our board and secure team cleaned up over 130 buildings this year and we hope to increase our vacant building program again next year. Removing these eyesores and improving our neighborhoods helps attract new homeowners. That's the best way to keep our neighborhoods safe. Over the past several years we have increased staffing in our code department. This budget maintains that level of service.

Capital Investment Continues

The City's infrastructure needs must be addressed. Continued diversion of Distressed Cities Aid from the Long-Range Capital Plan to the Operating Budget threatens the infrastructure investment necessary for the City's continued resurgence.

The decision to use half of the distressed cities aid for operational expenses will challenge our ability to maintain critical investment. We must seek other sources of aid to supplement this essential area. We will seek additional aid through state funding and through the use of federal and state grant sources.

A major portion of the city's water and sewer underground network is in need of repair and replacement. Our annual Capital Budget, supported largely by Distressed Cities Aid, continues to fund major repair projects such as the 101st and 102nd Street Sewer interceptor projects. Our 150-year-old water and sewer systems won't work unless we annually invest the resources necessary to achieve a state of good repair.

The city's streets require paving, resurfacing and reconditioning on an ongoing basis. Roofs on city facilities need replacement. Equipment and vehicles must be in a state of good repair as well as state of the art. The 2003 Budget will support some of this work but since 1997 our annual Capital Budget has provided the bulk of the funds.

Economic Development Needs

The 2003 Budget will continue to enhance our economic development initiatives by focusing on implementing the South Troy Working Waterfront Plan, the Historic Troy 2020 initiatives and the continued renewal of the Central Business District. The City will continue to create an urban environment within which private investment and homeownership can thrive.

The major focus of the 2003 Budget remains the reliable and efficient provision of excellent city services to our citizens, which will improve the overall livability and quality of life for Troy residents. This budget continues the efforts that we have begun to support quality neighborhoods, encourage homeownership, increase property values and foster business investment. It takes time before all the pieces fall into place and progress is measured.

In addition, it is critical that we maintain sufficient funds to leverage the millions of grant dollars we have successfully won for our city. Without the availability of proving the "match", we stand to literally walk away from the financial resources that can transform our community.

These are extraordinary times. Our chances for success have never been greater, yet the challenges are significant. This budget is a reflection of these times.

I look forward to the City Council's support during the 2003 budget process. I pledge my full cooperation as we strive to produce a balanced 2003 Budget which provides the level of city services required to make Troy a center of urban life that both residents and businesses are proud to call home. We face difficult choices and decisions. Working together, we will make the right decisions to enable the city to progress. I'm proud to be Troy's elected leader and promise you my ceaseless efforts to make Troy the best place to live, work and play in 2003!
